There's good news and bad news regarding Kevin Bacon. The first is that he will be unable to star as the Ghost in the new Stephen King film The Dark Tower. The second is that he will be landing a role in the new Terrence Malick movie. The third is that he will still be "playing himself." SPOILERS AHEAD Last week, Bacon let it be known that he will not be lending his professional services to the production. In an interview with Cinema Blend, he said, "This is not a movie I would want to be in. It's got monsters, and I don't want to be part of that." And a few days later, it was announced that he will be playing a character called "Kenny Baker." And apparently, the hunchback. It could be a callback to his role as Ike in the 1986 horror film A Nightmare on Elm Street, which was based on a Stephen King novel. Or maybe it's just his supporting role in the Malick movie. Like, look, the fact that he's in it at all is like the best-case scenario. Malick is due to begin production next month on the movie, which is due to be released in August 2012, and the cast has already been announced with Mia Wasikowska as the female lead and Jonny Lee Miller as the male. Chiwetel Ejiofor and Michael Peña
