It was a dark day. Dejobaan's latest videogame hit -- AaaaaAAaaaAAAaaAAAAaAAAAA!!! -- A Reckless Disregard for Gravity -- sold so poorly that no one was buying it. So the studio's advertising team came up with the idea of putting adorable dead kittens on the cover and making the game free to everyone. It didn't work. In fact, it backfired, and the whole company went bankrupt. Now here you are, angry and brokenhearted, sinking thousands of dollars into this game only to be brutally murdered by the games industry. Don't worry, though. You're not really dead. You're a mad man desperately trying to prove that you're still alive. Disclaimer: Game is completely free to download and play. Extended version: Okay, I'm not great at programming, but I'm working on this "Story" for ~1 hour now (in 2 days). Just want to say thank you for visiting, and comment in advance. Many games have stories, so this story comes first. Also the first sequel of this story. To start: The story begins in the year 2012. You are viewing this file from the year 2048. The main characters are you, the player and Sypher (which means Sypha + Alpha). In the year 2012 you are a normal, average human being. You live in the middle of a lovely city, and it's populated with various humans, and there is a park close by, which is (and still is) the largest and most popular park in the city. You're a punk rocker, and you are involved in some punk stuff, but you don't go to any shows, because they're mostly lowbrow music, and that's not what you're into. You're a programmer, and your friend has an idea: an android robot which is made out of metal, and can kill without pain. You're interested in it, but you're not into robot-hacking, and that's also not what you're into. You have a friend (Evan) who's into the punk rock, and he has an idea as well. A dating game, in which you both can participate, and which rewards you by - among other things - allowing you to play Rockband with robot monsters, which are used for the normal play of Rockband. Sypher and Evan's parents are not very interested in the idea, but both you and your parents are, because the robot can replace many jobs and can be used as a super-cool robot and your parents have money, because they're rich. Evan's parents agree to it, because there is no way they can stop him, and his computer can be hacked into. The story begins, when the next day Sypher went to his parents, and asks for permission. The parents agree. But, one of them changed the law in the agreement, which says, that in case of any (violent) crimes by Sypher, his parents have to decide for him, what to do. Sypher's father (you never met his father, cause he died in an accident with a machine, which wasn't meant to be used) agreed, Pew! Pew!" a child's voice howled, echoing throughout the streets of Seward Park. A small group of boys gathered around a group of other boys, pointing and laughing. Three of the younger boys ran away in fright, giggling all the while. "This little brat is going to get himself into something," one said to the others. Ryuji, Iceman, Finn, and Aquaman were standing nearby, watching the scene unfolding. "Hey, you kids," a policeman yelled, his voice thick with apathy. As if on cue, two teenage girls began to negotiate peace from the group. "Finn, your way," the voice commanded; the girls walked away. "I'm not signing anything," Finn said. "What are you gonna do about it?" A large boy stepped forward, a few inches higher than the others, with huge biceps nearly bursting from his skin. He had black hair, a red Detroit Pistons baseball cap, and a black eye. "If we behave, the police will go away," a man in a business suit said to the boys. "What are you talking about?" Finn asked, his voice the most balanced. "How are you going to go away? You're standing right in front of us. Besides, we're hardly children." "Sure," the boys laughed. "You're going to replace us as a gang." "Hey!" Iceman blurted. "I don't know what you kids are talking about. If any of you assholes gets mouthy, I'll see you on the sidewalk." "Oh, just shut up," the man in the suit said. "What are you gonna do?" one of the kids asked. "Just give you something to remember me by," the man said, glaring at the boys. The boys quickly scattered, save for a young man dressed in a red, green, and white jersey. "Wait up, U2," a young boy called out. "Hey, I was looking for you," Kevin offered.

• Immersive world – You are Pharaoh and you will rule a vast land with diverse inhabitants. In just a few clicks you will shape the history of your people. • Thousands of years of history – It all starts with hunter-gatherers and ends with the construction of the pyramids. Follow your people to this endless journey full of adventure and discovery. • Living world – Play the role of a Pharaoh in an interactive, living world. You'll have the chance to drive your people to greatness, watch them flourish or fail and remember it all for all time. • Play historical events – Action-packed conflicts and city-building. Start a war, watch it play out and influence people by gifting leaders with gold. Or make deals with other civilizations and trade goods to further your advancement. • Living people – Every inhabitant of your city is a living, breathing person with wants and needs. Will they be loyal and willing to work for you or will you have to worry about revolts? Do you think that celebrities only have a role in the lives of their fans and followers? Do you think that they do nothing for the fans except for being a distant celebrity? If you think like this, you are wrong. For years, celebrities have remained the envy of everyone. According to the latest reports and statistics, out of almost 700,000 people who work in the entertainment industry, more than 700 make an average of around $70,000 a year and out of these numbers, only about 300 of them are Hollywood stars. Think about this. How much is it worth to have a picture in a magazine? How much does it cost to be famous? If you are a celebrity, wouldn't you rather have a lot of fans in the world and have your name mentioned everywhere? Today, celebrities have become a part of our daily lives. We have them on our T.V. screens, radios, cellular phones, in the news, movies, and even have their toys made in our homes. We are the cause of their fame and their fame brings them a lot of money and power. So, if you are a celebrity, then welcome to the ranks of riches and power. Become a part of the media, take part in movies, and enjoy a comfortable life. Become rich and powerful, and you will surely leave the rest in your wake. For the price, a beer, a movie ticket, and a family day, you have the ability to become a famous celebrity
