A radioimmunoassay for human tumour necrosis factor (TNF) was developed. Purified TNF from cell-free culture supernatants was adsorbed to microtiter wells and added to tritiated rabbit anti-TNF serum. The reaction mixture was passed over a protein A column to remove the unbound antibodies. Tritiated rabbit IgG was then added and bound antibody was quantitated using a polyethylene glycol precipitation step. The assay showed no cross-reactivity to either human interleukin-1 (IL-1) or IL-2. The TNF concentration in cell-free culture supernatants from a monocytic cell line was measured. The specificity of the assay was tested on supernatants from tumour cells infected with the Newcastle disease virus. There was a linear increase in TNF activity with increasing doses of Newcastle disease virus, but TNF activity was not present in supernatants from uninfected tumour cells. The detection limit of the assay was 2.2 pg/ml. The assay may be useful in the study of the regulation of TNF production by cell types. jQuery UI Droppable - Tag specific accept type
